THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION

1. Five three-storied brick buildings located on Olszewska Street in Bytom are occupied by two infantry battalions. The soldiers of these units wear round caps with a red band. In each battalion, one company is armed with PPS guns, the second with arms similar to the Sten gun, the third with ordinary rifles and mortars, and the fourth is the heavy machine gun company. An infantry battalion is stationed in the two-storied barracks on Lagiewnicka Street, previously occupied by Sluzba Polsce units. The soldiers are armed with ordinary rifles. Each day, half the battalion works in the coal mines. Another infantry battalion, armed with submachine guns, is quartered in the Dymitri coal mine, and its members work in the mines.
2. An infantry battalion armed with PPS guns is quartered in a building at the Pokoj foundry in Nowy Bytom. This unit performs guard duty at the foundry.
3. Weapon parts, as well as machine parts and machine tools, are secretly being manufactured in the Zgoda foundry at Swietochlowice. It mass produces parts and ships them to the Soviet Union, presumably for a new weapon.
4. In the past four months the Zygmunt foundry has been enlarged. Three new buildings were erected and a building which has stood empty for four months is now filled with machine tools. Various machine tools and weapon parts are manufactured, and parts for a new weapon are now being tested. Soldiers, in compact units, are employed in the military production division; they are quartered in nearby villages.
5. Prior to 4 May 1951, Soviet military units were stationed in the barracks on Plebiscytowa Street in Opole (Wojtowa and Polwsie Villages). The barracks were left deserted when these units left for Germany. Two-man bunkers, 60 meters apart, are being constructed about 2 km from Opole in the direction of Wroclaw.
6. Between 5 and 8 June, Soviet military trains loaded with tanks, automobiles, cannons, and ammunition were seen heading west at Katowice, Opole, and Wroclaw. These transports consisted of several trains of about 36 to 40 cars.
